"Tea is more popular than ever in America . Tea rooms are springing up everywhere and fine hotels are once again promoting their new tea services", explains Cindy Falco Di Corrado, host and owner of The Victorian Lady. "In the Victorian era, ladies served tea from elaborate silver services in the "drawing room". Tables would be clad with the whitest crisp linens. The dishes made of delicate china with intricately painted flowers. Lace doilies placed on the serving tray, and each saucer and plate. The teapot was used as a showpiece with surrounding teacups and saucers, the tiny spoons nestled within. The Victorian Tea is the one we think of when the custom of tea is mentioned".

This same atmosphere has been re-created for your enjoyment at the Victorian Lady Tea Room. A visit to this charming One of Kind Tea Room is truly a must for anyone who loves tea time the way it was meant to be.
